Cuticura

REMEDIES

Have specially and permanently cured Humors of the Skin and Scalp of Children and Infants afflicted since birth.

The treatment prescribed in such cases is mild doses of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, a perfectly safe yet powerful blood purifier, and the external use of Cuticura, the great skin cure. The Cuticura Soap should be the only soap applied to the diseased skin for cleansing purposes.

HUMOR ON A CHILD

Since birth cured, after faithful Medical Treatment had failed

Messrs Weeks & Potter. Gentlemen—My little son, two years of age has had a humor on one side of his face since he was born, which during the last four months has spread over the entire side of the face, the chin, [illegible] and side of the head. It must have itched and irritated him a great deal as he scratched the surface all the time, no matter what was applied. I used many remedies by advice of friends and my physician, without benefit, until I found Cuticura, which immediately allayed the itching and inflammation, and entirely cured him.
Respectfully, JOHN L SURRY,
With Walworth Manufacturing Co
Boston, April 15th 1878.

NOTE. Once cured the skin may be rendered soft and fair by using the Cuticura Soap exclusively for toilet or nursery purposes.

CHILDREN AND INFANTS.

More Cures of Skin and Scalp Affections by the Cuticura Remedies.

Fred Rohrer, Esq, Cashier Stock Growers National Bank, Pueblo Colorado, writes "I am so well pleased with its effects on my baby, that I cannot afford to be without it in my house. It is a wonderful cure, and is bound to become very popular as soon as its virtues are known to the masses."

J S Weeks, Esq, Town Treasurer, St Albans, Vt, says in a letter dated May 28 "It works to a charm on my baby's face and head. Cured the head entirely, and has nearly cleaned the face of sores. I have recommended it to several, and Dr Plant has ordered it for them."

M M Chick, Esq, 41 Franklin St, Boston, says "My little daughter, eighteen months old, has what the doctors call Eczema. We have tried most everything, and at last have used Cuticura, and she is almost a new child, and we feel very happy."

PRICKLY HEAT!

Incidental to the Texan Climate.

Messrs Weeks & Potter. Gentlemen.—Enclosed please find one dollar for a large box of Cuticura. The small one that I received some time ago has been very efficacious, especially in Prickly Heat or Rash, as some people call it. I am nothing at about [illegible] Yours truly,
THOMAS W BUCKLEY
Mason, Texas, Sept. 23, 1878

CUTICURA is a most valuable external application. It heals all cuts, bruises and abrasions of the skin, restores the hair when destroyed by scalp diseases, removes dandruff and keeps the scalp clean and the hair soft and pliable. It is as agreeable as it is effective, and is ably assisted, in every case, by the CUTICURA SOAP, which is particularly recommended to mothers for cleansing the skin and scalp of infants and children. It is Toilet as well as Medicinal, and is the most fragrant and refreshing Soap for the nursery and bath of any yet prepared.

Parents have our assurance that these remedies contain nothing injurious to the youngest infant, evidence of which may be found in the certificates of Dr Hayes and Prof Merrick accompanying each remedy.

THE CUTICURA REMEDIES are prepared by Weeks & Potter, Chemists and Druggists, 360 Washington Street, Boston, and are for sale by all Druggists. Price of CUTICURA, small boxes, 50 cents; large boxes, $1. RESOLVENT, $1 per bottle. CUTICURA SOAP, 25 cents per cake, by mail, 30 cents; three cakes, 75 cents.

THE TEMPLE!!

The Temple is for Singing Classes. The Temple is for Conventions. The Temple is for Choirs.

$9 00 per dozen. Single copy $1 00.

At this season, when music-teachers, choir leaders &c., are quietly making up their minds as to the best books for use during the coming musical season it is a pleasure to introduce to their notice so fresh, good and useful a book as this one by W O PERKINS, who now, by the act of Hamilton College, takes on the well deserved title of Musical Doctor. From the elegant title to the last page the space is most acceptably filled.

The Elementary Course is ample in quantity and has numerous new tunes for practice, which practice, indeed, may extend over the whole book. Abundance of good Sacred Music, in the form of Metrical Tunes and Anthems, fills a large proportion of the book, and renders it a good Collection of Church Music.

The numerous Glees and Harmonized songs add to the attraction, and make this an excellent work for Musical Societies and Conventions.

Specimen copies mailed, post free for $1 00.

SAD RESULTS

Traced to Overworked Minds and Bodies.

SUICIDES, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, PARALYSIS.

Heart Diseases and Sudden Deaths.

One after another of the great men of the nation are falling and most of them in middle life. All victims to overwork. Can we afford to lose such men? Those men died of nervous prostration in the midday of their usefulness, and in the last year how many business men and women have suddenly fallen out of the ranks either into untimely graves or to a worse fate. The business men of the nation are killing themselves by overwork of mind, if not of body, and we call it "nervous prostration." The middle class is suffering in the same way. Overwork, the pressure of the times, worry, fret and anxiety, are rendering us a weak and suffering generation. No man would commit suicide if his nervous system was in a state of perfect health. It is inevitably the result of nervousness in some form or other. Now, is it not time that we as a people, should seriously examine into this matter, and seek a remedy, if one can be found? The nervous system must be sustained and built up in proportion to its waste and disintegration or we must suffer. The facts prove that this waste is not supplied by our ordinary diet and living. The refined manner of living now does not give to us in our food enough of nerve food or enough of that which goes to make nerve matter, to meet the demand made upon the nervous system, and the result is nervous prostration, paralysis, apoplexy, despondency, neuralgia, headache, sleeplessness and premature death. We all know that these are facts and acknowledge the importance of a remedy. Now, with all professional candor, I can say, after years of experience in their use, and sustained by the testimony of many thousands in this city and elsewhere, that my CELERY AND CHAMOMILE PILLS do, and will supply the needed material to the nervous system. They are a nerve food. Their first effect is to promote digestion thereby curing dyspepsia, secondly, they enter into the nervous fluid and create nerve matter, and in this way permanently cure nervous prostration, despondency, headache, neuralgia, nervousness, etc., by removing the causes of these diseases and securing the system against paralysis and apoplexy, etc. They contain no opium or morphia nor any narcotic whatever, and can safely be used for any length of time.—The extract of celery is the great nerve maker, and the extract of chamomile the great promoter of digestion and nervous sedative, but their combined effect is wonderful, indeed, curing cases that have resisted all other treatment, even by the best of physicians. Anybody and everybody, I don't care who they are, would be improved by taking one of these pills after breakfast and dinner for a while. People that want a clear complexion and smooth skin, free of disease, must keep their nervous system in a healthy state. Domestic care and business anxiety often make quite as serious inroads upon the nervous system as the higher order of mental work, and thousands of people are eking out a miserable existence, suffering from nervous weakness and sick and nervous headache, that could be perfectly cured by availing themselves of this remedy. It is certainly worth a trial in every case. The claims of this preparation are recognized by the profession, I am glad to say, and largely used and recommended by them. And why should it not be so? It is not a patent medicine. It is the result of my own experience in the practice of medicine. As to my professional standing I will let the following letter from Prof Samuel Chew, Sr, speak.
Respectfully,
DR C W BENSON

BALTIMORE, Sept 15, 1860

Dr C W Benson is a graduate of the School of Medicine of the University of Maryland. While a pupil of that institution he was distinguished for industry and zeal in the pursuit of professional knowledge, and his examination for the degree of Doctor of Medicine was entirely satisfactory to his instructors. I have known him for several years and believe him to be a physician eminently prepared to be useful and also of unexceptionable moral character. I take great pleasure in commending him to the esteem and confidence of the community.

Fearless and outspoken in the treatment of all public questions and firmly maintaining what they believe to be right, they will avoid intolerance and make their appeals to the understanding rather than to prejudice. The coming year will be one of the most important in the political history of the country, and the WHIG AND COURIER congratulates itself that the Republican Party of the Union will enter the year 1879 united upon the platform of Principles which that paper has steadfastly maintained while so many wavered. My experience is that they should never be cooked for cattle, but always for hogs, and at half the price of corn they are profitable to feed in connection with meal."

The largest bridge in Europe will be completed next year. It will cross the Volga in the government of Samaria, Russia, on the Siberian railroad line. The bridge will be supported by twelve piers eighty-five feet high, with ice cutters thirty-five feet high at a distance of every three hundred and sixty-four feet. The ice cutters are covered with granite. A temporary colony is established for the working-men employed on the bridge, it occupies about fifty-six acres, and has sixty different buildings, insured at one hundred thousand roubles. Two thousand men are employed, and among them are one hundred Italian masons. Three steamers and seventy barques are used constantly for forwarding wood, stone, iron and other materials. The bridge will cost about $3,500,000.

THE TIDE WIFE. Says Oliver Wendell Holmes: Often times I have seen a tall ship glide by against the tide as if drawn by some invisible tow line with a hundred strong arms pulling it. Her sails unfilled, her streamers were drooping, she had neither side-wheel nor stern wheel, still she moved on stately in serene triumph as with her own life. But I knew that on the other side of the ship hidden beneath the great bulk that swam so majestically there was a little toilsome steam tug with a heart of fire and arms of iron that was tugging it bravely on, and I knew that if the little steam tug untwined her arms and left the ship, it would wallow and roll about and drift hither and thither and go off with the tide no man knows whither. And so I have known more than one genius high decked, gay [illegible] [illegible] for the bare toiling arms and brave warm heart of the faithful little wife that nestled close to him so that no wind or wave could part them, would have gone down with the stream and have been heard of no more.

THE PIG IN AGRICULTURE

The pig has recently been spoken of in contempt when compared with four other domestic animal. But if we examine his good qualities [illegible] we must award him a high place in our agriculture. He is found to produce a pound of [illegible] duct from less food than either cattle or sheep, and is, therefore, the most economical machine to manufacture our [illegible] crop into marketable meat. Our [illegible] are becoming wiser every year, and expect ing less proportionately of the raw into rial, and more of condensed product. It takes seven pounds of corn on an average to make a pound of pork [illegible] doubt the case the farmer begin to see the great economy of exporting pork instead of pork, bacon or ham [illegible] seven pounds of corn. The difference in cost of freight makes a fine profit of itself, besides the pound of meat is usually worth more than seven pounds of corn in the foreign market. The production of pork should be encouraged on the further consideration that it carries off less of the valuable constituents of the soil than beef. The fat pig contains only three fourths as much mineral per hundred weight as the [illegible] and only two-fifths as much nitrogen per hundred weight and therefore the production of a ton of pork on the farm will carry off only a little more than half the fertility carried off by a ton of beef besides a ton of beef will require nearly fifty per centum more to produce it. This gives in round numbers the comparative effect of producing pork and beef. It is thus evident that the pig should be fostered in every way, his capabilities studied and pushed, his diseases carefully noted and prevented, for he is the most profitable meat producing animal on the farm. The pig is an excellent adjunct to the dairy turning all the refuse milk and even whey into cash. As he is king of our meat exports so let us treat him with great consideration.—Moore's Rural

"TOO THIN!"

It won't do, Mr. Smith! Your attempt to dodge your own letters and put forward Mr. Boutelle as indorser of your faithfulness to the Greenback party is "too thin!"

You must face your own hand-writing in your own propositions WRITTEN AND PRESENTED FOR REPUBLICAN CONSIDERATION AFTER Mr. Boutelle's reply to your shuffling letter!

You can't plead what another said or wrote about you, but must stand up and meet what you wrote with your own hand to induce the Republicans to elect you.

Before the fac-simile of your writing appeared, you declared that anything to be produced would be a "forgery." Now that the proof has appeared you dare not deny it and cannot explain it away.

Hon. J. T. Updegraff, who spoke in Hallowell last evening, is at present Representative in Congress from the Mount Pleasant District in Ohio. He belongs to a widely known and highly respected Quaker family. He is the grandson of Jonathan and Anne Taylor, well known preachers in the Society of Friends. His own mother, Rebecca Updegraff, was a prominent preacher in the Society and highly beloved for her many virtues.—Kennebec Journal, 20th.

MAINE POLITICAL NOTES.

Col. Z. A. Smith, of Boston, will address the citizens of the following places upon the political issues of the day: At Weston, Aug. 26; Amity, Aug. 27; Oakfield, Aug. 28; Hodgdon, Aug. 30.

The Republicans of Freeport had a grand rally last Friday evening, with a crowded house. The band furnished music. The Greenbackers are few and far between in that town.

A Davis club of one hundred members was formed at Woodford's Corner, Deering, Thursday evening. Hon. W. F. Lunt addressed the meeting.

Hon. Anson P. Morrill addressed the Davis corporals at Augusta, Monday evening. Remarks were also made by Geo. E. Weeks and H. M. Heath, Esqrs.

The Maine shipping interests are looking up. Vessels are in demand and are again paying dividends. So reports an Islesboro' shipowner who believes that good times have come to stay.

It is expected that Gen. Sheridan, who made such an eloquent and witty speech in Granite Hall a few evenings since, will be in Augusta on election night.—Kennebec Journal.

Only a few days before the session of the last legislature closed, Mr. Ellis, of Waldo, a Greenback senator said: "I am ashamed of the Greenback House! In matters of genuine reform the Republican Senate is far ahead."

Ex-Congressman Bisbee of Florida, formerly of Maine, is on a visit to Maine, and has consented to take part in the canvass. He will probably speak in Oxford and several other counties. Mr. Bisbee went South in 1862 as captain in the Maine 9th, and after serving gallantly through the war, settled in Florida, where he has since resided. The people of Maine, of all parties, will be glad to hear from a man who knows what is going on in the South.

Cassius Clay Robertshas been dropped by the ungrateful Greenbackers of Waldo, and one Lamson nominated in his place. This Lamson was a member of the House last year, and spoke and voted against Soldiers' Orphans' Asylums, saying that poorhouses were good enough places for the children of soldiers. He is a healthy man to vote for.—Portland Press.

The indications from Maine continue to be of the most hopeful character. The Republicans are hard at work and enthusiastic. Their meetings everywhere were largely attended last week and the most satisfactory interest manifested. The Greenback-Republicans are returning in large numbers, satisfied that they were deceived last year or determined not to be the means of turning Maine over to the Bourbon Democracy.—Boston Journal.

One Col. Harper, of Illinois, is proclaiming Greenback doctrine in this State. During a recent speech in Litchfield he put this proposition in unmistakable language: "Let the Republicans be warned," he said, "revolution is the natural weapon of the common people. If, we fail at the ballot box then I tell them to beware of the other remedy, the cartridge box!" Have the Greenbackers of Maine turned Ku Klux? The endorsement of such sentiments would indicate as much.—Aroostook Pioneer.

The Honest Truth calls upon its readers to "Remember, that while the Green-demagogues have prated about the rights of the poor man, they have constantly depreciated the value of the money he used, the Republicans have all the time striven to make it as good as the bondholder's money. To-day the poor man's money in the United States is the best money in the world. The sole object of the Green-demagogues is to reduce its value and to increase the price of the necessaries of life. It isn't possible for such a humbug to prevail in Maine, two years in succession."

A Greenbacker named Solon Chase, who is awful anxious to be a Congressman and assist in remodeling our national financial system, amused the citizens of Houlton last Friday evening by his ridiculous nonsence about the price of pork, beef, butter and eggs, and those poor fellows who want to raise the mortgages upon their farms. He didn't tell his audience that a chicken, a dozen of eggs or a pound of butter will purchase more tea, coffee, sugar, molasses or dry goods now than at any time during or since the rebellion.—He left that fact for us to state. Neither did he impart to the mortgagors the secret of how to obtain from the government treasury, except by rendering an equivalent, the greenbacks which his party desires issued. The fact is, Solon is a political fraud, and has brought his nonsence to the wrong market. Our people are not so easily gulled as he imagines.—Aroostook Pioneer.

One Mr. Harper, a Greenback orator, in his harrangue at Gardiner, said: "I am so confident that resumption is a failure that I will give one hundred dollars to the man who will show me one instance of a manufacturers' paying his hands in gold." Thereupon, says the Honest Truth, Mr. George F. Holmes, having an eye to business, arose and claimed the hundred dollars. The ground of his claim was pretty good. For the last three months he has paid the hands in his paper manufactory in gold. There is at least one other instance of the same sort in Gardiner. But Mr. Harper, with true Greenback honor, didn't pay the $100. It was a flat promise to pay. There was nothing behind it. At least, those who have heard Mr. Harper have a realizing sense of such mighty littleness that the shortest cut to the truth is to call him nothing.

We are informed that at the Lincoln County Democratic Convention yesterday only seven delegates appeared and the meeting had to be adjourned without action. Wouldn't that have been a cheerful gathering for Governor Garcelon to address?

The ringing speech of Hon. F. A. Pike, of Calais, at the Davis Club Headquarters, last evening, was one of his happiest efforts, and we are glad to know that he has been devoting just such telling and effective arguments to the cause since the opening of the campaign. The services of Mr. Pike on the stump have proved of great value, and it is a cause of gratification that so able and effective a speaker has entered the field to combat heresy and illusion in Waldo County. There is no man in the fusion ranks in the Fifth District who can compare with him in ability, and his influence cannot fail to be strongly felt in the Campaign.

THE ISSUE IN MAINE.

A LETTER TO A REPUBLICAN-GREENBACKER.

The Editor of this paper recently received a letter from a prominent Greenbacker, who was formerly an earnest Republican and one of the few Union soldiers who have been drifted by the financial controversy into what must necessarily be an uncongenial political alliance with the Democratic party. The letter was a frank and courteous presentation of some of the writer's reasons for supporting the Greenback doctrines, with a request for an equally candid reply. In complying with that request, as we did most cheerfully, it occurred to us, that while the gentleman who wrote us did not wish to appear in public discussion, it might be well to publish our reply, without its personal address, for the consideration of others who have possibly been asking themselves similar questions concerning topics of great public interest. We, therefore, print it as follows:

BANGOR, Aug. —, 1879.

My Dear Sir:—I intended replying earlier to your polite letter, but you are aware that my time just now is pretty constantly occupied. I take occasion, however, in the midst of a pressure of work to give you a candid response to a courteous letter.

You misunderstood me to say that it was against Mr. Smith's interest to be a Greenbacker because he is a holder of bonds. I did not put it quite in that way, but said it was inconsistent for a man holding bonds to lead a crusade in denunciation of bondholders as Shylocks and extortionists. I said it was against the interests of Mr. Smith as a man of property, a man of business, to favor financial doctrines that would prove destructive to property rights and plunge the business of the country into chaos; and that as a man of intelligence I did not believe him sincere in his present political position.

I do say now that it is against his interests as a bondholder as well as in relation to any other property honestly acquired, to favor schemes for depreciating the currency and dishonoring the national obligations.

But your question whether, if the Greenback policy is against the bondholders the Republican policy is not therefore run to the advantage of the bondholders, involves an error in so far as it assumes the Republican policy to unfairly or exclusively favor the interests of the bondholders of the country.

This erroneous idea is brought out more fully in your next paragraph in which you state the Greenback doctrine to be that "the bond monopoly, as we call it, is an advantage to one class, that is, to those who hold the bonds, but a disadvantage to another class, that is, the producing class of the whole country."

Now, my dear sir, it seems to me that your main trouble lies in the fallacy of that assumption.

There is no such thing as a bond-holding "class" in this country. The ownership of the Government's bonds changes from day to day and hour to hour. The people of this country are the bondholders, very few being now held abroad, and the producing, or as I suppose you mean, the working classes, are really more interested in the stability of those bonds than any other class. To the heavy capitalist a depreciation of the value of the bonds would only be a loss on one of his investments, which he would not seriously feel, but a depreciation of those securities which so largely form the basis of reserve in all the savings banks, trust companies and insurance companies, as well as of banks of deposit, would fall heavily upon the working classes who depend upon these institutions, and who cannot afford to lose.

There can be no such thing as a monopoly of bondholders. You know why the bonds were created and issued. That the national government borrowed money from the people to carry on the war, to pay, feed and clothe the soldiers, etc., to put down rebellion, and that bonds were given to the loaners as the Nation's promise to repay them. There was no monopoly then. Our Secretaries of the Treasury begged of all the people to come forward and loan their money for the bonds of the Government. They did so, and it was not alone the rich who furnished their money in exchange for the Nation's promise. You know what was said at the time about the worthlessness of Government bonds. You know what many of the present Democratic leaders in the Greenback coalition said at the time about the shinplasters that would be good for nothing but papering water closets. It was a time of doubt and the future of this Government was a matter of grave anxiety. Under these circumstances your fellow-citizens and mine stepped forward and put their money into the Treasury to keep you and I and others provided with means to carry on the struggle in defence of the Union, and in exchange they took the pledge of the honor of the United States that they should be repaid with interest. As to our honorable obligation to them I can offer to a soldier no more emphatic or appropriate testimonial than the words of a distinguished political opponent and one of the most gallant officers of the Union Army, Gen. Henry W. Slocum, who spoke as follows to his comrades of the Army of the Potomac at their reunion in Springfield, Mass., in June of last year:

COMRADES: In all great wars the soldier, of course, is made the central figure. So bright is the light which is thrown upon his deeds by the historian, that most other agencies are obscured. In our late war there were many agencies brought to bear, aside from those in which we bore a part. The Secretary that raised troops to fill our armies is entitled to great credit. But while we award him that credit, we must give some credit, at least, to the Secretary who secured the means by which they were supported.

There is an article in your Constitution—and it has seldom been violated—which declares that no one at our meetings shall introduce any subject of a political character; but I am sure none of you will charge me with introducing a political subject when I say that, at the hour of our greatest danger, I felt grateful to the men who risked their fortunes in our behalf. (applause.) I was grateful to the capitalist who loaned the money which supplied us with munitions of war. I was grateful then, I am grateful now, (applause). I do not belong to the class of soldiers who would either rob or cast reproach upon the men who furnished the means which enabled the Government to send me to the battle-field. (great applause.)

The enthusiastic applause with which I heard those sentiments greeted by a great gathering of the veterans of the Union Army, was an expression of gratitude to the very people who are now denounced as "Shylocks" and "Bloated Bondholders."

Now, as to the payment of the bonds. The proposition to pay them off in depreciated paper currency was put forward in 1868 by the Democratic party and was fully discussed before the American people. The Republican Party took square ground against the Pendleton dishonesty and declared in favor of keeping the "aftermost" "good faith to all creditors at home and "abroad, not only according to the letter, "but the spirit of the laws" under which the debt was contracted. On that distinct issue the people of the United States by a majority of over 300,000 and by 214 Electoral votes against 71 rendered their verdict in favor of paying our debts according to the spirit of the contract and against the Pendleton Greenback doctrine. On that issue Maine declared for honest dealing with the public creditors by 28,030 majority, and you and I as Republicans were proud to contribute with our votes to the emphasis of that verdict. That decision of the people of the United States in their sovereign capacity, gave a new pledge of the National faith to our own citizens and to the world, and on the basis of that pledge our bonds by hundreds of millions have passed from hand to hand with a confidence that has raised the National credit to where it stands to-day.

So when you say "no more bonds, and pay those outstanding as fast as possible," you can only mean to pay them as fast as we can do so in accordance with our solemn and repeated pledges. That is just what the Republican Party has been doing through its administration of the finances. Since 1865 we have reduced the total of our indebtedness more than $720,000,000; we have actually paid off more than $584,000,000 of the bonded or interest-bearing debt; we have reduced the annual interest by more than $67,000,000 per year.

You say "no more bonds." You can only refer to the $90,000,000 of 4½ and 4 per cent. bonds issued since March 1, 1877, to purchase coin for a redemption reserve. But the Treasury books show that while we incurred liability for $3,925,000 for interest on those bonds, the resumption of specie payments that those bonds provided, for has enabled us to refund our 5 and 6 per cent. bonds in 4 per cents. to an extent that has caused a saving since that date of March 1, 1877, of over $14,000,000, or a net saving of over $10,000,000 per year after deducting from the gross reduction the interest on the $90,000,000 of bonds issued to secure specie payments. I think that upon examination of the facts, you will concede that the issuing of those redemption bonds has proved a most profitable transaction for the Government, in the saving of interest effected by refunding at such a reduced rate, to say nothing of the great benefit arising from a return to a sound and stable currency basis by making the paper dollar or the United States, whether in the hands of the poor or the rich, worth 100 cents of the best gold that is coined in the mints of the world.

More than this: your observation must show you that the sound policy of finance pursued has brought relief instead of the distress predicted by its opponents; that in place of the panic and disaster so freely prophesied it has restored confidence, established credit and inaugurated a revival of industry and prosperity that only the wilfully blind can fail to recognize. On this point I cite the evidence given by one of the shrewdest observers in this country, no less a personage than the late Democratic candidate for the Presidency, Samuel J. Tilden. His evidence was given in confidential intercourse and was therefore unrestrained. Congressman Springer, of Illinois, called upon Mr. Tilden recently at Gramercy Park, and was so impressed with that person's unselfish desire for the success of the Democratic party next year, that he blurted out to a newspaper reporter more than Mr. Tilden would probably have desired to see in print. Here is Mr. Springer's report:

"Mr. Tilden is of the opinion that within the next four years the country will be blessed with a remarkable season of prosperity; that times will be easy, and that an impetus will be given to every branch of trade and industry. 'Now,' said Tilden, 'I will tell you, Mr. Springer, why it is important that the Democratic party should succeed, and why I desire its success above any personal ambition I may have to gratify: If the Democracy can ride into power on the wave of prosperity which I think is coming, it will remain in power indefinitely. On the other hand, should the Republicans retain power, they are liable to hold on for a half century to come. Whichever party wins the next Presidency will get the credit of the betterment of the condition of affairs which is surely coming."

That is the private concession of the Democratic chief that the Republican policy has placed the interests of the country on a sound basis and insured "a remarkable season of prosperity." No quibble can be made here in Maine that he was speaking in anticipation of the results of any possible future adoption of a Greenback or fiat money policy, for Tilden is a "hard money Democrat" and has strongly denounced the policy of inflation. No, it is the triumph of Republican policy to which he thus unintentionally is made to bear public witness, and with the craft for which he is noted he wants the Democratic party to steal the fruits of Republican achievement and "ride into power" to obtain credit for an era of prosperity for which the country is indebted to the firm and honest course of the Republican party.

Of course Tilden, although a "hard money Democrat," desires Republican defeat in Ohio and Maine regardless of the principles of their opponents. He is looking to Democratic success in 1880, and believing that the Greenbackers will never have power to reverse the financial policy established, he is willing and anxious that they be used as weapons to defeat the Republicans. That is the meaning of the Maine campaign, as confessed daily by scores of the most radical Democrats. They admit that they have no sympathy with the Greenback doctrines, but declare that their only purpose is to defeat the Republican party, and that when that is done they can take care that the Greenbackers do no harm. You know that this is so as well as I do. You know that under no other circumstances and motives could the Bourbon Democracy of Penobscot County have been induced to repudiate their own County Convention and to humiliate themselves to aid the success of the Greenback ticket. They are simply "stooping to conquer" and the candid and incautious among them frankly say so.

Next year either a Republican or a Democrat will be elected President of the United States. The Democrats start out with the Solid South's 138 Electoral votes and the rest they must get honestly or dishonestly from the loyal North. They want the seven Electoral votes of Maine, and if they cannot get them for the Democratic ticket they want at any rate to take those seven votes away from the Republican column. If they can defeat the Republican party in Maine this year by the aid of Republican Greenbackers, they hope that next year they can drag their allies completely over to the support of the Democratic candidates. That is the whole of it, and if you will look at the situation candidly, listen to what Democrats are saying to their own men to induce them to fall into the fusion programme, you cannot fail to so understand it.

The whole question then for citizens who have hitherto been Republicans and who have differed with their party only on the financial issue that resumption has settled, is simply whether they will aid in giving Maine into the future control of the Democratic party and assist the Solid South in electing a Democratic administration to fulfil the threat to "wipe the last vestige of war legislation from the statute books."

That question is becoming better understood by all Republicans day by day, and those who have supported the principles of the Republican party from conviction, are wheeling into line again under its banner by thousands all over the State. Enough have already discovered the Democratic trap and repudiated the treacherous Democratic alliance, to render Republican victory well assured. That victory should be given all the emphasis which the vote of every man who has ever been a Republican can contribute. Certainly every man who "wore the blue," who fought to establish the principles that Democratic victory would trample in the dust, should stand by the Old Flag here in Maine, upheld as it is in the honest hands of his comrade, Daniel F. Davis.

That you and I and all others who have years past stood side by side for National supremacy, equal rights, an honest ballot and protection of the life and liberty of every citizen at home or abroad, may again be found advancing shoulder to shoulder to raise the grand old Republican Banner on the ramparts of victory in September is the sincere hope of

Yours truly,
C. A. BOUTELLE.

Two of the Plaisted family come to the surface in Friday's Commercial. Gen. Harris M. appears in a resurrection of his letter to the Boston Advertiser, evidently timed for the soldier's reunion here, but we have not the slightest alarm about its effect in that direction. Then Thomas M. spears in a letter about the Eliot meeting where he so distinguished himself a week ago. It is only—or rather, hardly—necessary to say that his statement that the Republicans were the challenging party is entirely false as everybody concerned is aware. His attempted abuse of the gentleman who furnished our report, is simply contemptible, as the Editor assumes full responsibility for what was published and has had assurance of its entire correctness from more than a dozen auditors and eye-witnesses on that occasion. His amusing egotism about challenging Gen. Hall to a "discussion" will be appreciated in some of the up-river towns where the Republicans we are told, have freely offered to pay his expenses if he would come into their communities and make Greenback speeches. The trouble with Thomas is that he is on the wrong track, and he knows it; and when a man who has been a radical Republican finds himself training in company with Pillsbury, Boynton, Ladd and the rest of the old Copperhead crowd, we don't wonder that his temper is soured.

THE FRYE MURDER!

FULL DETAILS OF THE DEED.

THE MURDERERS ARRESTED.

BOSTON, Aug. 19. Last Thursday night the murder of Jos. F. Frye was accomplished at No. 13 Jay street under circumstances of great mystery, and all sorts of theories have been advanced and the utmost publicity given to the facts in the case, but no headway was made until last night when the murderers were taken in custody by officers of the the Third Station and are now under lock and key. The evidence against them is said to be abundantly conclusive. One of them, Nicolo Infanteno, called "Nick," or "The Boy," by his fellow Sicilians, resided at 33 Causeway street and was the barber who shaved Frye during the last six months of his life. He is sixteen years old. Antonio Arditto, the other principal, is twenty years old. He is called "The Greek," and fled from Italy to escape arrest for murder, having been in this country for two months. He was a barber at 12 Fleet street and slept in the shop. He was an intimate friend of Infantino.

These two men, with one other, came to the house of Frye at 8 o'clock Thursday evening and the last remained outside while the others went in to play billiards and spend the evening; all three intending to rob Frye and murder him if necessary. The third man is not yet in custody, being wanted as an accessory before the fact. Search has been made for him but he has not turned up as yet. He is called "Larry."

The Entrance of Frye's House.

The trio met on the Common and Larry gave Nick the revolver with which the shooting was done. Nick gave the Greek his shears. Nick rang the bell at 8 P. M., and Frye let him in with the Greek and Larry staid outside. Those inside amused themselves, the Greek drumming on the piano while Nick and Frye played billiards and had some refreshments. The evening passed along until half past eleven when the Greek told Nick to get Frye to show him the house, desiring to get Frye into the cellar with the intention of robbing him there.

The Murder Accomplished.

At the foot of the cellar stairs the Greek clinched Frye and jammed the scissors into him. Frye begged that they wouldn't kill him and wrung Nick's hands begging him to spare his life. The Greek told Nick that if he didn't shoot he (the Greek) would stab Nick. The pistol was fired and Frye died. The murderers laid the revolver in the coal hod, took the watch but forgot the diamond and took the keys of the safe from his pocket. The marble was moved by both but nothing was found. The safe was ransacked and the men left the house leaving the doors open. Then they went to the barber's shop at 41 Green street where they were arrested.

Another Arrest Made.

It seems there were four conspirators to the assassination of Mr. Frye. The crime was first suggested two weeks before the murder by the boy Nicolo Infantino and the Sicilian known under the alias of Larry O'Neill. They first confided the scheme to one Bandierio, keeper of a barber shop on Fleet street who is now under arrest as an accessory, but not feeling sure of his nerve they took the Greek Arditto into the conspiracy in his stead and the programme was carried out as previously stated.

Another barber, named Denaco, is under arrest as an accessory after the fact, for secreting the stolen property. The prisoners are very calm and self possessed. Nick is but sixteen and is a mere slip of a boy.

FALL RIVER DEFALCATIONS.

Excitement Over Arrests

Durfee In The Police Station.

Paine's Defalcation.

FALL RIVER, Aug. 19. The city is terrible excited to-night over the arrest of Geo. B. Durfee, ex-Treasurer of Mechanics mill, who was taken in charge to-night by the city Marshal and confined in the police station where Chace, Hathaway and Stickney were placed. It is impossible to learn at whose order the warrant was issued but probably the work of District Attorney Knowlton, as the latter is known to be of the opinion that Durfee and Paine are both guilty of criminal action and he proposes make a searching investigation of the affairs of both the American Linen and Mechanics mill. All efforts to secure bail, fixed at $35,000, so far has been futile, Jefferson Borden, Durfees' father-in-law, refusing to go on the bond.

The news of Durfee's arrest hardly become general when it was learned Walter Paine, the third defaulting Treasurer of the Linen mill, had left for parts unknown. It is thought Paine's case will develop into the worst defalcation yet, as no one believes his operation confineds to cotton speculation, and think his irregularities extend several years. He went to Providence yesterday to see his mother once more before meeting the stockholders, and word has been received from there that he escaped. A warrant has been issued for his arrest, but litlte hopes are entertained of his capture. The mill directors themselves are said to be unable to ascertain the true standing of the concern. Paine is found to have saved very little property which can be secured.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. M. L. Hoskins, of Oldtown, has had a return of malarial fever, with severe bronchial trouble and pleurisy, so that she cannot attend to her correspondence, and probably will not for a long time be able to give attention to any public work.

LOST HER RINGS. Saturday, Miss Buffum, a daughter of Hon. Chas. A. Buffum, lost three finger rings while going to Portland on the steamer Lewiston. She took off the rings in the wash-room, and turning to pick them up found they had disappeared. One was quite valuable, another was her class ring, and the other a plain gold band. Some female thief is probably wearing additional jewelry.

FROST IN AROOSTOOK. A correspondent at Easton writes: Last Friday night this section of the country was visited by a heavy frost, which did much damage to the growing crops, especially those on the low land. A frost in August is something unusual, the like not having occurred before for many years. As a rule the crops are looking well, especially potatoes and wheat; corn, however, will almost be a failure. Help is very scarce, another evil of resumption.

THE FLAG RAISING which was to have taken place at Bucksport Monday evening, was postponed on account of the rain storm to Saturday evening next, when there will be a grand rally and torchlight parade, with music by the Bucksport Band; after which the people will have an opportunity to listen to addresses by Hon. D. F. Davis, and others, at Emery Hall. The several clubs of this city have had a very pressing invitation to go to Bucksport and lend a helping hand.

THOSE "PRUNING SHEARS" AGAIN. Messrs. Peavey Bros. & Co. recently received a letter from one Israel Brown, of New Vinyard, Franklin County, informing them that he had been appointed their agent for the sale of their pruning shears, and that he wanted sixty pair forwarded at once. He also informed them that he would like to get the agency for the town of Anson. This letter was accompanied by a printed certificate signed by E. L. Yancey & Co., addressed to Peavey Bros. & Co., stating that "Mr. Brown has been appointed our regular agent for the sale of our goods, and you will please place his name on file and supply all goods ordered by him at $2.00 each." Messrs. Peavey Bros. & Co. inform us that they manufactured six pairs of these shears for samples, for this crowd, some time ago, but that otherwise than that they know nothing about them whatever, and we fear that Mr. Brown's name will have to be added to the long list of victims, who have been taken in by the pruning shears game.

THE RALLY AT LINCOLN. There is every indication that the grand Republican mass meeting at Lincoln next Friday will be very largely attended. Arrangements have been made with the E. & N. A. Railway Company so that tickets will be sold from this city for $1 for the round trip, which is one-fourth the regular fare, and the rate will also be reduced in the same proportion from the intermediate stations. There will be speaking afternoon and evening and between the meetings the Bangor Band, Mr. M. H. Andrews leader, will give an open-air concert on the Academy grounds. Refreshments of hot coffee, baked beans, etc., will be served by the citizens of Lincoln free of charge.

A BAD CUSTOMER. Last night two tramps called at the house of one Charles Foster, on York street, and wanted a chance to sleep. They had both been drinking, but Foster took them in and gave them a chance to pass the night. After he had retired Foster heard one of them moving about and finally discovered that one of the tramps had gone through his pants and taken his wallet, containing five or six dollars. He immediately went for the fellow and they had a lively tussle, but the tramp was too many for Foster and got away with the money, leaving a portion of his clothing, however, in his hasty exit. Foster notified the police and officers Dougherty and Allen went up to the house and arrested the other tramp, who was very drunk, but he would say nothing about his chum.

Mr. Penny was employed as master mechanic on this road from 1870 to 1873, when the road was leased by the E. & N. A. Company, at which time he went to St. John and took charge of the E. & N. A. repair shops, until they were closed in 1875. He was then employed by the Holly Water Company when they were putting in their machinery, and was afterwards engineer at the Water Works. In 1876 he went back on the B. & P. Road and remained there until last fall, when he was obliged to give up his position on account of failing health. The funeral will take place in Oldtown Thursday afternoon at three o'clock, and as he was a member of St. John Commandery, K. T., arrangements have been made for a delegation to attend at one fare up and back.

All persons making entries will be required to purchase tickets of admission to the Fair Grounds, unless they are members of one of the Societies.

A HARD STORM. The weather this summer seems to be distinguished from that of the same season in years past by the remarkable changes from warm to cold, and then back to warm again, of which we have experienced many. On Saturday last the clouds began to gather during the afternoon and it rained some during the evening, but the storm did not commence in earnest until Sunday morning. It rained most of the time during the day and Monday it fairly poured. During Monday night the wind began to blow and it continued to increase in violence until it was almost a living gale, and in fact one of the wildest nights we have seen for some time. No serious damage was done in the city, however, although small branches were broken from the trees, store awnings somewhat rent and the corn in many of the gardens, about the city, leveled to the ground. At Northport the gale was the heaviest ever experienced by the visitors at the Camp-ground. Several tents were blown down, some of the cottages leaked badly and nearly all of the boats that were afloat filled, and several of the larger ones that were ballasted went to the bottom. The clouds gradually disappeared yesterday and the latter part of the afternoon the sun came out, but it was exceedingly cold for this season of the year, and last evening a good bright fire was very comfortable. Owing to the storm the steamer Cambridge laid over in Seal Harbor and will leave Boston Wednesday night, instead of Tuesday. The Katahdin came through and arrived here at half-past seven o'clock last evening. The Cambridge will leave here on her regular trip Thursday.

Police Court.

In the police court yesterday a tramp by the name of Frank Clark was fined three dollars and costs, and in default of payment he was committed to jail.

EIGHTH—NINTH—ELEVENTH.

Regimental Reunion,

Election of Officers.

REUNION COLLATION

To-Day's Entertainment.

In accordance with the vote passed at the last annual reunion of the Veterans of the Eighth, Ninth and Eleventh Regiments Maine Volunteers, held in this city Aug. 27th, 1878, they commenced their second annual consolidated reunion yesterday at the Grand Army Hall, about sixty comrades being in attendance, many of them being accompanied to the city by their wives.

The hour of meeting having been set at half-past two, the comrades met at Grand Army Hall at that hour, and effected an organization as follows:

President, B. F. Strickland, Portland.

Vice President, Capt. L. B. Rogers, Patten.

Secretary and Treasurer, Thomas T. Tabor.

The business meeting then adjourned to 8 o'clock P. M., and the comrades spent the afternoon in renewing old acquaintanceships and in talking over the scenes and events of other days. It having been announced that there would be a collation at the hall at 6 30 P. M., the comrades met at that hour, many of them bringing their wives with them, and having with them also several friends from this city not members of the organization.

Tables were spread in the hall of the Queen City Grange, adjoining Grand Army Hall, and were bountifully supplied with the necessary materials for a fine collation, under the direction of Mr. Samuel Church, and those present showed their appreciation of the culinary skill by the hearty manner in which they attacked the good things set before them.

After all had satisfied the demands of the inner man, President Strickland called the company to order, and called upon various gentlemen present for remarks, and the following gentlemen responded: Ex-Mayor A. C. Hamlin, C. A. Boutelle, Gen. Joseph S. Smith, Paul R. Seavey, Esq., Comrades Geo. M. Fletcher and C. H. Foster, respectively of the 8th and 11th regiments, and General H. M. Plaisted of the 11th.

REVIVAL OF BUSINESS.

Some of Its Indications In Bangor.

As the cheap Greenback orators who are now stumping this State have a great deal to say about the hard times and the complete stagnation of all kinds of business throughout the county, our reporter thought that he would talk with some of our manufacturers and ascertain the facts of the case.

In accordance with this idea he started out yesterday afternoon and as he was passing down Exchange street stepped in to Parker & Peakes, boot and shoe manufactory, where he enjoyed a few minutes conversation with Mr. Parker. He said that up to the present time their business had been about one half larger than last year. They are now employing eighty hands and have all they can do all of the time. They commenced work the first of the season with fifty hands and have averaged about sixty ever since they started. Early in the season they received some very large orders and with their large crew have them nearly filled; but the small orders are coming in as fast as they can take care of them, and there is every indication that the business will continue good until the end of the season. Since the first of July they have been making boots only and are turning out from twenty to twenty-five cases a day. On referring to his books Mr. Parker said that since the first of January they had turned out about 2382 cases, making about 3300 dozen pairs of boots and shoes, and that up to the present time they had manufactured 500 more cases than they did during the whole of last year. As regards wages he said that the most of his help worked by the piece and they did not reduce their pay any last year, as they were now getting the same; but those that worked by the day had been increased from one to two dollars a week. This don't look exactly as though the business of our city was entirely dying out.

After leaving this establishment our reporter next called at E. A. Buck & Co.'s manufactory, on Columbia street, where he found Mr. Buck busily engaged in his office. This concern have occupied their present quarters about two months and in time will have everthing in first class condition, as they are adding new machinery all of the time, and will probably employ from eighty to a hundred hands, next winter. They get their power from Dole Brothers establishment on Hammond street. In reply to a question as to how his business this year compared with last, Mr. Buck said that it was much better now than it was then, and that there was no trouble about the business of the country now, if the currency was only let alone. They manufacture brogans mostly and commence about the first of November and run on them until the first of June. Last year they received their last order June 29th and this year they received an an order yesterday and are now running on their orders for brogans, which is an unheard of thing with them, so late in the season. They commence on moccasins about the first of July and run on them until the first of January, cutting and fitting them in the factory and then sending them out to be made by people living in the suburbs of the city. Although this is the quiet part of the season with them, Mr. Buck is feeling in excellent spirits and is well pleased with the outlook for business when they start on their fall trade.

THE CAMPAIGN.

Meeting at Danforth.

Mr. Editor: Hon. F. A. Pike, of Calais, spoke Monday evening at Lucy's Hall, Danforth, on the political issues of the day to a good sized audience, considering the severe rain storm that prevailed through the afternoon and evening. He gave a clear and convincing argument in favor of sound currency and the principles of the Republican party.

Meeting at the Davis Club Room.

The Davis Campaign Club held a special meeting last evening and voted to accept the invitation to take part in the rally at Lincoln Friday. A committee of ten was appointed to see who will go. Hon. F. A. Pike, of Calais, addressed the club upon the financial question, and demolished the Greenback claim that contraction brought on the hard times, by citing in a very telling manner the prosperity of the country in all branches of industry for five years after all the contraction was accomplished. He gave a very cheering account of the campaign in Washington and Aroostook counties, saying that gains are reported everywhere for the Republicans. His remarks were frequently interrupted with applause. It was announced that the special train would leave at one P. M. on Friday for Lincoln, and that the fare would be $1.00 for the round trip.

Club Formed in Brewer.

Mr. Editor: The young men of Brewer, decided to form a Davis Club, and Monday evening met for that purpose, in Harlow's Hall which they have rented for headquarters, and which they propose to keep open day and evening for a reading room, and for social gatherings. The meeting was called to order by Charles A. Harlow, who stated the object of the meeting, and John N. Barker was chosen President; M. G. Prentiss, H. T. Sparks, S. A. Wilson, A. A. Sawyer, Vice Presidents; Charles A. Harlow, Secretary; George M. Farrington, Treasurer; Executive Committee: Leslie Viellen, Chas. E. Wentworth, Fred C. Thomas and Herbert A. Fowler.

After the organization the Davis Veteran Guards came in and joined the club in a body, and about eighty names were enrolled; among the number was Capt. Otis Gilmore who signed the roll amid the cheers of the club. He said that the soldier call was too strong for him to resist, and he was anxious to again be enrolled for the promotion of the Union. The club voted to join the excursion to Lincoln next Friday, and also to go to work for "Davis and Victory."

All friends of the cause are invited to the room of the club, and also to become members, if so inclined. The cause is looking bright and cheerful in this town.

Meeting at West Hampden.

Union Hall at West Hampden was well filled last night at the Republican meeting. B. B. Thomas, Esq., was called to the chair and introduced Hon. E. B. Nealley who spoke for an hour and a half, on the questions at issue this campaign. Notwithstanding the storm, people came from Newburgh and Hampden and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

After a general discussion the whole matter was laid onthe table for the purpose of ascertaining as near as can be, the cost of the work andthe resources of the city to meet the expense.

Amusement Notes.

Boston will have seven theatres next season.

Joseph Jefferson's season commences at Cincinnati (Pike's), Sept. 8.

The receipts at Haverly's Theatre, Chicago, where the Union Square Theatre company are playing, have been between $8000 and $10.000 per week.

Manager Murphy will take the Murphy minature "Pinafore" opera company out on the road in the New England circuit at the close of the engagement at the Boston Museum.

Miss Maggie Mitchell will produce during the season a new play, written for her by a young Californian, and said to be admirably adapted to her vivacious and sympathetic character.

The "Boston Pinafore Company" is to be re-organized and will add the "Chimes of Normandy" to their repertoire. This company will visit Bangor during the season.

Miss Dora Wiley makes her first appearance with Rice's "Evangeline" Combination at the Park Theatre, Boston, on Thursday of this week.

A party of visitors called at the Cary homestead, in Durham, Me., the other day, but no one seemed to be at home. Determined to make sure, they made their way to the back of the house, where they discovered Miss Cary humming an air from "Aida" while closely watching a broiling steak. They remained long enough to satisfy themselves that the talented contralto was an artist in more senses than one.

Little Corrinne, the child artist, is winning special praise in the role of Little Buttercup, with Murphy's Minature Opera Company in Boston, Mass. Her acting is is said to be marked with a rare degree of intelligence, and she has a voice of sufficient power, and sings clever enough to make the personation one on which the press of the Hub can justly lavish considerable praise. The infant prima-donna, who is the child of Jennie Kimball the actress, portrayed the character of the bumboat woman for the one-hundreth time at the Boston Museum, August 19.

When the Bowels are Disordered,

No time should be lost in resorting to a suitable remedy. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the most reliable and widely esteemed medicine of its class. It removes the causes of constipation, or of undue relaxation of the intestines, which are usually indigestion or a misdirection of the bile. When it acts as a cathartic, it does not gripe and violently evacuate, but produces gradual and natural effects, very unlike those of a drastic purgative, and its power of assisting digestion nullifies those irritating conditions of the mucous membrane of the stomach and intestinal canal which produce first diarrhoea, and eventually dysentery. The medicine is, moreover, an agreeable one, and eminently pure and wholesome. Appetite and tranquil nightly slumber are both promoted by it.

THE UNWILLING BRIDE.

The northern part of Georgia is a wild, picturesque country. The gold found in this region had, in earlier days, drawn to the vicinity adventurers from nearly every civilized land.

Thirty years ago, many men of broken-down fortunes from other States came to northern Georgia with the hope that the fickle goddess would prove kinder to them in this new avenue to wealth than she had deigned to be in other vocations.

Among these was a family named Loser, who had become much reduced in circumstances and were as unsuited to their present surroundings as it was possible for people to be. Luis Loser was a middle-aged man, of singular grace of person and elegance of manner, and his wife was a faded, helpless woman of fashion, torn from her native sphere, and transplanted to this uncongenial land against her own consent.

Mrs Loser had married twice. Her first husband's name was Leslie, and a daughter of eighteen, named Kate, and one of fourteen years, named Edna, were her children by her first marriage.

At the time our story opens, Mrs Loser, a delicate-looking woman with a peevish expression on the face which had once been radiant with the ephemeral beauty of lilies and roses, lay on an old fashioned sofa in the spacious hall of the dwelling.

Her toilet corresponded with her surroundings—a much-worn morning dress of dark silk with frayed trimmings, was finished at the throat with a tie of coffee colored lace, and a pair of well worn satin slippers covered the small feet, thrust out as if their owner was proud to display them.

Her slender, useless looking hands were ornamented with glittering rings, and in one of them she held a worn looking volume which she seemed to be reading with some interest.

Suddenly a rush was heard, and Kate Leslie, her daughter, came swiftly across the veranda and entered the hall, carrying in one hand a package of papers and letters, and swinging from the other a large straw hat simply trimmed.

A more striking contrast to the inert creature on the sofa could hardly have been found. The girl was full of life energy, ambitious to run a brilliant career, and it was evident to those who knew her that she did not intend to be disappointed in her aspirations if the consummation of her wishes depended on herself.

Kate was in the heyday of youth—a brilliant sparkling brunette, the roses of health on her cheeks and lips, and the light of hope and joy in her dark expressive eyes. A magnificent suit of dark brown hair with a glint of red in it gave character to her bright face.

As Kate rushed across the floor toward her mother's place of indolent repose, she exclaimed in clear, ringing tones:

"Such a lot of papers and letters never came to this house at one time before! I've been to the office myself on a Flyaway. Here is a letter for you, mamma, all the way from California, and by that token, if I did not recognize the writing, I should know that it is from Dick Staunton. Time indeed that he should write, for it is two years since we had a line from him, and we were all so good to him too!"

Mrs Loser flushed slightly as she took Staunton's letter, opened it and eagerly read its contents. She seemed to be both interested and surprised, and her daughter furtively watched her while she pretended to arrange the rest of the mail on a side table.

"Well, I do declare!" cried Mrs Loser, after a few moments. "I wondered what Dick had to say to me, but I suppose it was best to write to me under the circumstances."

"What can you mean, mamma, and what does Mr Staunton say? Am I to conclude that Dick has become a millionaire, and wants me to help him spend his money?"

"Well I do declare! If you haven't hit on the very thing itself! He doesn't say that he's worth a million, but he gives me to understand that he is very rich and getting better off every day, and he's coming back here after you! If you will marry him he will stay in the East, and let his partner manage his mining interests there! That's about all, and I think it is quite enough to settle your destiny. It would mine if I were in your place."

While her mother spoke Kate had flushed scarlet and then grown pale as death. She asked in a breathless sort of way:

"Do you believe it is quite true? Do you think Dick can really be in earnest?"

"I have no doubt he believes what he says himself and I see no reason why it should not be true. Why do you grow so pale Kate? It must be all right, for you liked him well enough when he was staying here with us, and he made no secret of how much in love with you he was. Indeed till lately, I thought there was some sort of promise between you."

"Why till lately?" asked Kate hoarsely.

"Well I do declare! as if you couldn't answer that yourself! If you had promised Dick, I did not think you would carry on with Harry Conrad as you have done since he came among us. It's a regular flirtation and he's awfully in earnest, child, though he hasn't a foot of land he can call his own nor money in the bank either. Of course you will send him adrift now, you ought to have done it when he first presumed to speak to you of love."

"But I liked him then, and I more than like him now," said Kate, abruptly. "I—I made a sort of bantering promise to Mr Staunton but I had no idea he would ever be in a position to claim it. He asked me the day before he left us if I would remain single two years to give him a chance to make a fortune that would enable him to place me in such a position as I was born to fill. He had tried so many things and failed at them all that I thought it quite safe to reply that I would wait ten years if he wished it. He could not have believed that I was in earnest."

"But he evidently did, my dear, as you will see when you read what he says. By this time Dick is on his way back, and he may walk in on us any day, expecting a warm welcome from the girl for whom he comes with a fortune in his hand. Read his letter and you will see that he does not mean to give you up."

With an air of listless dejection Kate held out her hand and accepted the letter offered by her mother. As she read the lines color came back to her face, and her eyes sparkled with aroused temper. She crushed the paper in her grasp, and scornfully said:

"What does Dick Staunton mean by saying that I belong to him—that he is coming to claim his own? That he will tolerate no interference on the part of any one, and if I have indulged in any girlish fancies I must put them aside and prepare to welcome my true lord and master when he comes to take me to himself? I never bound myself to him in any way, and I won't—I won't be dictated to by him in this manner."

Accustomed to her daughter's mode of expressing herself when greatly excited, Mrs Loser sank back on her seat and tranquilly replied:

"It is natural to Dick to be masterful, and he says no more than you have given him a right to express. You admit that you consented to wait for him, and, to a man like him, that meant everything that such a promise can imply."

"But I never meant it! Oh, what shall I do? What shall I do?"

"I can easily tell you. Send Harry Conrad away at once, and make him understand that his dismissal is final! Think of the magnificent future opening before you, and prepare to receive with cordial welcome the lover who comes to shower his hardly-earned gold upon you!"

Poor Kate left her mother's presence in a tempest of feeling it would be impossible to portray. A fierce battle was raging within her, and she also trembled before the dread that she would never be permitted to reject the lover who came with the power in his hand to release those she tenderly loved from the hopeless dreariness of their present existence.

A young, bright face, with nobility of soul stamped upon every lineament, arose before her, and she covered her face with her hands and moaned in her anguish:

"They will tear me from my Harry—my darling and my pride; they will preach to me of my duty to them and to myself, until wrong will seem right, and I shall become a mere puppet in their hands. And he—he—that man of strong will, is coming to compel me to fulfil a contract I never meant to make. Oh, what shall I do! what will become of me!"

She had sat down on the upper step of the winding stairs, and now rising abruptly, she went into her own room and closed the door.

Shortly afterwards Mrs. Loser knocked tremulously at her daughter's door and asked to be admitted.

There was a slight stir within, and a faltering voice replied:

"I had rather not see any one just yet, mamma. Give me time to bathe my eyes, and get calm, and I will see and talk with you. O! if you love me, leave me alone now!"

To this passionate adjuration Mrs. Loser replied:

"I must see you at once, Kate. I have something that is most important to say to you. Something that you ought to know, as it may help you to a decision as to what is right for you to do."

After a slight delay the door was unlocked, and Kate, with swollen eyes and a pathetic expression of helplessness upon her face, looked with trembling dread upon the mother who, she knew, had come to throw some additional load upon her young shoulders, heavy as was the one she already had to bear.

The apartment of Kate was simply but tastefully furnished. In it were found the few books she claimed as her own, her guitar, her portfolios of dried plants, and many little nick-nacks such as young girls like to collect around them.

The walls were covered with pencil sketches made by herself, fancifully framed with autumn leaves. Among them was found the shadowy outline of a young man's head so lightly drawn that the fair artist seemed afraid to make it too distinct lest it might be recognized. A wreath of wild flowers hung over it, and concealed the words faintly traced beneath—"My ideal."

The head was certainly a very noble and handsome one, and Kate deserved credit if she had drawn it from her own conception of what is grand and true in man.

Her mother glanced around as she came in, unwilling to look straight at her daughter, and see in her face the signs of the bitter struggle she knew she had been passing through. Her eyes fell on the phantom head, and she said:

"This is something new, I have not seen it before. Have you taken to drawing ghosts, Kate? for this seems nothing more."

"That is the ghost of my happiness, mamma," said the girl, wearily, "and it will soon go to the grave that is being dug for it."

"What stuff! I see now that it is a highly idealized sketch of Harry Conrad's head, and you have placed it there as a shrine, I suppose, before which to offer your silly adoration. I do declare, Kate, that you are a most absurd young woman."

"Absurd as I may be, mamma, until to-day you seemed to sanction my attachment to Harry. It is cruel—cruel to expect me to tear my heart from him at a moment's warning. I know what you have come to say, but I would rather not hear it. All the persuasions self-interest may prompt you to utter will be powerless to change my feelings toward Mr Conrad."

"You dreadful girl! is that the way you brave me to my very face? You cannot—you shall not—marry Harry Conrad. Have I not given you to understand that such a union is out of the question?—that it will bring destruction on all you are bound to care for in this world?"

Kate grew pale, but she quietly said:

"My refusal to sell myself for gold can only affect myself, mamma. Your fate and that of Edna cannot, in any way, be controlled by my discarded lover."

"Can it not? when he owns the very roof that covers us—the soil from which our scanty living is drawn? It is true, Kate. He holds a mortgage on the place for money advanced to Luis, and my dower right in this poverty stricken home is all that stands between us and starvation. This is what I came to tell you, and this is what you must consider before you anger, by refusal, the man who certainly has the first claim on you."

Kate fell back as if she had been shot and the courage she had battled so hard to sustain deserted her. Her breath came in low, gasping sobs, and after a long interval of silence, which her mother thought would never end, she faintly said:

"I understand that my fate is settled, then. I shall be allowed no choice. Oh! I know too well that I shall be forced to submit my will to yours, and struggle as I may the net will close around me and compel me to give my hand to one man while my whole heart is in the possession of another. Oh, mother! mother, how could you have suffered things to come to such a pass as this? Paupers! dependent on Richard Staunton for the very bread we have eaten, he will demand his payment of me and I dare not refuse! I know the kind of man he is—he would set us adrift, penniless, homeless, to beg, or starve, should I prove false to that silly pledge given in childish thoughtlessness and oh! so bitterly repented of since!"

Her voice sunk into low, sobbing murmurs and her mother's pity for her was mingled with exultation that she seemed to yield at once to the necessities of her position, and accept the fate it was so much to the interest of the whole family that she should not refuse.

A week passed away and nothing was heard of the expected lover from California, although he had written that he should not be many days behind his letter, and at last rumors came that the Albatross, on which he had left San Francisco, had been wrecked, and that many lives had been lost.

Kate had been struck down by brain fever and for days she lay vibrating between life and death, raving in wildest delirium and then moaning over the cruel fate which gave her heart to one lover and forced her to yield her hand to another.

Mrs Loser was fond and proud of her lovely daughter, yet the deepest dread in her heart at this dreary crisis was, that in the death of Kate the prospect of wealth must pass from them all.

Edna watched unweariedly by the sick couch of her sister and Mr Loser devoted himself to her assistance. He was a great help to her for he had studied medicine in his youth, and he undertook the management of the case himself, declaring that he could bring Kate safely through all the phases of this torturing illness. He had given her a potion which would not only break the fever, but so affect her brain that for a time she would have but little recollection of recent events, and so would not be apt to say anything to Staunton about her lover, Harry Conrad.

A few hours after Loser had administered the dangerous potion to Kate, Staunton suddenly arrived. He was a man six feet in height, magnificently proportioned, and might indeed have passed as a demi-god among men of lesser mould, for his head was massive and handsome as the marble bust of Napoleon. His eyes were dark hazel, well set and expressive, but with a gleam in them which showed that if things went wrong with him a temper might be aroused which it would be difficult to quell.

Loser, who had warned his wife and Edna with regard to what he had done, was the first to meet Staunton, who had heard of Kate's illness and eagerly questioned her step-father as to her condition.

Loser's face fell slightly as he saw by Staunton's manner how difficult it was going to be to deceive him with regard to Kate's real feelings, but he made the best he could of the situation, saying:

"Well, to tell you the truth, our dear girl has been very ill—is still suffering much, but the fever is broken, and I think—I am almost sure, that with care, she will soon be restored to us."

"Good Heaven! is she so far gone as that!" cried Staunton, with paling face. "What caused this illness? What is the matter with her? It was not brought on her by dread of my arrival, I hope."

His eyes flamed, his lips trembled and his brow grew stormy as he uttered the last words.

Catching at the chance his jealous fears suggested, Loser deliberately said:

"No—not by that, but by the shock she received when she heard of the danger you were in. She bore up a few days, but when no further news came from you, we—that is, the women—gave you up as lost, but I have believed through all that you would come back to us safe and sound."

Quite overcome by this false statement, the strong man sat down on the first chair he came to, and covering his face with his hands, wept a few delicious tears over the supposed despair of Kate over his own loss.

Loser watched him cynically, wondering if Kate's memory would be so deadened by the potion he had administered to her as to enable her to play the part he had assigned her in the tragic-comedy about to be enacted.

Suddenly Staunton lifted his head and asked:

"When can I see my dear girl? I must judge of her condition myself, and she had best be prepared to receive me. Her mother can do that."

Loser was nearly at his wits' ends, at a loss to know how he should deal with this impetuous man, and quite certain in his own mind that his sudden intrusion into the sick girl's apartment might produce results as fatal to his happiness as to Kate's life.

"After a pause, he replied:

"You do not understand how low Kate is; she is sleeping calmly now under the influence of a narcotic, and I hope for the best results from the first quiet sleep she has enjoyed since the commencement of her illness. My wife is utterly broken down by what she has gone through, and I have had to use my skill in her behalf, too; her nervous system is prostrated, and she is lying down now, trying to sleep, and Edna is watching by Kate's bedside. You must be patient a while, Dick."

"Patience never was my forte, you know of old, Luis," replied Staunton, obstinately, "and what you tell me of my poor darling only increases my uneasiness and my desire to look on her sweet face again, even if she is unable to spring to my arms and tell me how true she has been to me through all that long and weary absence. I feel as if every moment away from her now is a wrong to both of us. Please send Edna to me."

"Of course I'll go, but wouldn't it be better for you to tell me something about yourself before I seek Edna? The child will ask a thousand questions, and, perhaps, be unwilling to leave her sister for a moment. She knows that this is the crisis of the fever, and that everything depends on careful nursing."

Staunton regarded him with a searching stare and then impetuously said:

"Before the Lord, Loser, I could almost believe that there is something wrong here, and that you are in a quandary as to what course to pursue. I am losing the last grain of patience that is in me," he cried, almost furiously. "Words! words! words! do you think I am to be put off with them, Luis, when my very heart is aching to see that dear face which has been my beacon star through all the efforts I have made to make myself rich for the sake of the smiles it would lavish on me in the time to come? Go—go—I will not be trifled with another moment."

Loser thought it best to obey this imperious command, and got out of the room as quickly as he could, but he paused a moment in the hall to review the position, and reassure himself as to his power to manage the complexion of affairs so as to bring about a satisfactory denouement, well knowing that if Staunton got the slightest clew to what had taken place between Kate and Harry Conrad he would wreak a terrible vengeance on them all.

LETTER CARRIERS

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A M., and from 7½ to 8½ P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window,) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.
